1986 Index By Author

Alderson, Robert M.
The Boardroom: Time to Secure Rural Investments, Summer, p. 2.
Autry, Jim
The Better Mousetrap: Tough Collection Policies Can Make a Soft Touch Necessary, Summer, p. 13.
Rural Electric Cooperatives: Commissioned a Second time to Serve Members' Needs, Spring, p. 15.
Bennett, Solon A.
Logistics Management, Summer, p. 26.
Work Simplification, Winter, p. 23.
Decentralized Purchasing with Centralized Control, Spring, p. 40.
Bergland, Bob
Rural Electric Development and the American Farmer, Spring, p. 43.
Boudreaux, Greg
Becoming the Communication Hub of the Community: A New Role for Rural Electric Cooperatives, Winter, p. 37.
Member Communications—What Messages Customers Will and Will Not Hear, Fall, p. 42.
Brown, David S.
The Telephone—and How to Manage It, Winter, p. 41.
Cheney, John S.
From the Boardroom: The Case for Limiting the Terms of Cooperative Trustees, Fall, p. 5.
Clark, Paul J.
NRECA's International Program After 25 Years: Good Organizations and Proper Management are Still The Key in Developing Countries, Spring, p. 26.
Coffin, Richard W.
From the Boardroom: Limit Board Member's Terms? Why One Cooperative Decided Against It, Fall, p. 2.
Conway, John
The Board Room: Whom Does Your G&T Director Represent—The G&T or the Local Rural Electric Systems?, Spring, p. 2.
Costello, Kenneth W., and Ross C. Hemphill
Economic Challenges Facing Rural Electric Consumers, Part I, Fall, p. 29.
Cristell, Raymond R.
Management Memo: A Merger of Two Generation and Transmission Cooperatives, Winter, p. 6.
Dreyer, Stanley W.
Economic Development Leadership Through Cooperatives, Summer, p. 29.
Fuelberg, Bennie R.
The Better Mousetrap: A Neighbor Worth Knowing, Winter, p. 14.
Herriott, Scott R.
The Economics of Cooperation, Spring, p. 21.
Hines, Milton D.
The Boardroom: You Can Develop Member Support—Even With High Rates, Winter, p. 2.
Hodge, John
Which Style is Best, Spring, p. 32.
Hudson, Lane
Is Your Cooperative's Newsletter in a Fog?, Fall, p. 19.
Jenkins, Tom
Still in the Learning Curve, Summer, p. 38.
Lau, Barbara
Fun Breaks: Increasing Productivity—and Your Enjoyment of Life, Winter, p. 18.
Rewriting Obsolete Work Rules, Summer, p. 34.
Time Management: Cashing in on Both Brains, Spring, p. 35.
Write Your Own Life Story—Keep a Personal Journal, Fall, p. 16.
Lowrey, Martin
The Reindeer of Sweden: Some Thoughts on Chernobyl and the Rural Electric Program, Summer, p. 42.
Marshall, William J. A.
Management Memo: The Importance of

Being Earnest: A Primer for Leaders, Summer, p. 7.
Matejka, Kenneth, and D. Neil Ashworth
The FAIR Way to Motivate Employees, Spring, p. 19.
Murphy, Betty S.
Negotiators Are Made, Not Born, Winter, p. 26.
Sherfey, James D.
Management Memo: What Can Be Done: A Foundation Approach to Community Development, Spring, p. 11.
White, Jim
What Do Our Members Really Think? How One Cooperative Learned the Answers and How They Responded, Fall, p. 26.
Witter, Robert E.
Management Memo: Electric Cooperatives and Safety: The Importance of Proper System Operation and Maintenance Procedures, Fall, p. 10.
Zimmerman, Karen
Director Compensation Survey—Summary of Results, Spring, p. 6.

1986 Index By Subject

Board Room, The
Time to Secure Rural Investment, by Robert M. Alderson, Summer, p. 2.
The impact of municipal annexation on the cooperatives of Missouri and how they are countering threats to their service areas.
Limit Board Members' Terms? Why One Cooperative Decided Against It, by Richard W. Coffin, Fall, p. 2.
A description of the decision process and the reasons underlying it.
Whom Does Your G&T Director Represent—The G&T Or The Local Rural Electric System?, by John Conway, Spring, p. 2.
Avoiding potential conflicts of interest when serving on two related boards.
You Can Develop Member Support—Even With High Rates, by Milton D. Hines, Winter, p. 2.
Strategies for overcoming the adverse public relations which may accompany rate increases.
Collections
The Better Mousetrap: Tough Collection Policies Can Make a Soft Touch Necessary, by Jimmy Autry, Summer, p. 13.
How a cooperative combines effective financial procedures with respect for members' needs.
Communication
Becoming the Communication Hub of the Community: A New Role For Rural Electric Cooperatives, by Greg Boudreaux, Ph.D., Winter, p. 37.
Ideas on telecommunications and how your system can get involved.
Is Your Cooperative's Newsletter In a Fog?, by Lane Hudson, Fall, p. 19.
Assessing your newsletter to find out how easy it is to read.
Community Development
Economic Development Leadership Through Cooperatives, by Stanley W. Dreyer, Summer, p. 29.
An introduction to the National Cooperative Bank and its links to our community development efforts.
Approach to Community Development, by James D. Sherfey, Summer, p. 11.
How a cooperative in a high-growth area has assumed leadership to assure protection of the quality of life.
Developing Job Opportunities For Rural America, Part I, by Richard G. Sheridan, Summer, p. 19.
The nature of rural America today and how the cooperatives can make a difference.
Compensation
Director Compensation Survey-Summary

of Results, by Karen Zimbelman, Spring, p. 6.

Economic Trends And Rates

Economic Challenges Facing Rural Electric Consumers, Part I, by Kenneth W. Costello and Ross C. Hemphill, Fall, p. 29.

Two experts in the field explain ratemaking and how your system is affected by all the important variables.

General Management

The Economics of Cooperation, by Scott R. Herriott, Ph.D., Spring, p. 21.

Three economic motivators in a cooperative business and management's appropriate response.

Which Style Is Best, by John Hodge, Ph.D., Spring, p. 32.

Guidelines for managers and supervisors when deciding how directive to be with their employees.

Management Memo: The Importance Of Being Earnest: A Primer For Leaders, by William J. A. Marshall, Ph.D., Summer, p. 7.

An artful analysis of why some managers are terminated and some suggestions about how to avoid having it happen to you.

Humor

The Telephone— And How To Manage It, by David S. Brown, Winter, p. 21.

A wonderful satire on the most necessary—and at times irritating—instrument.

International Programs

NRECA's International Program After 25 Years: Good Organizations And Proper Management Are Still The Key In Developing Countries, by Paul J. Clark, Spring, p 26.

The history and present status of one of rural electrification's best contributions to the world—NRECA's International Programs Division.

Materials Management

Decentralized Purchasing With Centralized Control, by Solon A. Bennett, Spring, p. 40.

Resolving the quandry of combining efficient purchasing and adequate management controls.

Logistics Management, by Solon A. Bennett, Summer, p. 26.

How this centuries-old concept can be utilized in cooperatives for a more efficient use of all our resources.

Work Simplification, by Solon Bennett, Winter, p. 28.

Thinking through every step of every job can lead to "working smarter" and getting more done.

Member Relations

Rural Electric Cooperatives: Commissioned a Second time to Serve Members' Needs, by Jimmy Autry, Spring, p. 15.

One cooperative's approach to rethinking its mission in the light of present-day needs.

Member Communications—What Messages Customers Will And Will Not Hear, by Gregory Boudreaux, Ph.D., Fall, p. 42.

Important and discussion-provoking thoughts on how to elicit the understanding and loyalty of your new-era members.

The Better Mousetrap: A Neighbor Wor.h Knowing, by Bennie R. Fuelberg, Winter, p. 43.

How one Texas cooperative provides emergency assistance within its service territory and enhances its "community citizen" image.

What Do Our Members Really Think? How One Cooperative Learned The Answers And How They Responded, by Jim White, Fall, p. 26.

An easy, effective process for improving your cooperative's position among the membership.

Mergers

Management Memo: A Merger Of Two Generation And Transmission Cooperatives, by Raymond R. Cristell, Winter, p. 6.

The joining of two systems with different collective bargaining agreements, compensation plans, and benefit packages—and how it worked.

Motivation

The FAIR Way To Motivate Employees, by J. Kenneth Matejka, Ph.D., and D. Neil Ashworth, Ph.D., Spring, p. 19.

A commonsense approach to how to get people to do their jobs.

Negotiation

Negotiators Are Made, Not Born, by Betty S. Murphy, Winter, p. 26.

Arriving at solutions to difficult issues in a way that benefits everybody.

Nuclear Power

Still In The Learning Curve, by Tom Jenkins, Summer, p. 38.

One of two articles in this issue which focus on the future of energy resources development, especially of nuclear power.

The Reindeer of Sweden: Some Thoughts On Chernobyl And The Rural Electric Program, by Martin Lowery, Ph.D., Summer, p. 42.

The necessity of carefully assessing our own stance on nuclear power in light of the continuing—and little known—impact of Chernobyl.

Personal

Rewriting Obsolete Work Rules, by Barbara Lau, Summer, p. 34.

The fine art of balancing the demands of our busy lives (and of our ancestors' maxims) with our own needs and pay for leisure.

Personal Development

Fun Breaks: Increasing Productivity And Your Enjoyment Of Life, by Barbara Lau, Winter, p. 18.

Principles for finding time to do things for yourself, while at the same time becoming a more productive employee.

Write Your Own Life Story: Keep A Personal Journal, by Barbara Lau, Fall, p. 16.

The whys and hows of this simple, enjoyable tool for getting to know yourself.

Safety

Management Memo: Electric Cooperatives And Safety: The Importance Of Proper System Operation And Maintenance Procedures, by Robert W. Witter, P.E., Fall, p. 10.

Policies and procedures to avoid needless human and financial tragedy.